FELLOWSHIP MEETING

Medius Altus Fellowship met November 28th at the Mattapoisett Congregational Church vestry for the monthly recreation night. A wild game of whiffle ball entertained 17 enthusiastic players. The worship service was led by Jeffrey Chase and music played by David Helfand.

During the business meeting, the dance held the night before was discussed. The soda left will be kept for the next dance. There was a profit of about $35.00. The Toys for Tobey project was discussed, and the toys donated were looked over and sorted out for those suitable for hospital use. Some of the larger toys have been donated to the crib room of the church. The Fellowship wishes to thank everyone who donated toys and books, and appreciate the fine condition they came in.

The group visited Tobey Hospital, December 5th, during Fellowship time, and made their first contribution. The next one will be for Christmas. Anyone wishing to make or buy a toy suitable for a sick child may bring it to the church office and the Fellowship will see that it is taken to the hospital for Christmas.

It was announced that the group will go caroling after the White Gift service on Decem-

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

After the recent power blackout, I read an interesting article by Mrs. Lucy Wallbank which was reminiscent of yesteryear, when we had to get along without electric lights all the time. She made reference to the family use of the "sitting-room:, which is known nowadays as the "living-room".

In my childhood, I was accustomed to hear this sort of room referred to as the "keeping-room". Since my paternal grandmother, Azubah (Hiller) Vincent, and my paternal great-grandmother, Azubah (Hiller) Cannon, were both Mattapoisett natives, and they were the ones who used the term, and I have never heard oldtimers from other places use it, I have about decided it is an old Mattapoisett colloquialism. I wonder if some Mattapoisett residents can tell me about this.

At Harvard University he has been assistant coach of football and also with the Junior Varsity team. At the present time he is coaching the Harvard Freshman team and is the boxing coach. He was Boxing Commissioner for the State of Massachusetts for two terms of six years. Mr. Lamar is known for his excellent talks at banquets. He is very comical along with being serious and has a message to give the boys.

Once again the Boosters Club is trying to bring to this area speakers who have something to give and be interesting while doing it. For those of you who have not heard this man, he is worth going to hear.

Invited guests will be the 1965 undefeated Old Rochester football team, the cheerleaders, the Freshman football team and the coaches.

Master of Ceremonies will be Mr. Lenny Roberts, a member of the ORR faculty, who is well known in this area for his interest in sports. He has taken part in broadcasting many sporting events in the New Bedford area.

Booster Club members who have helped to make this a successful banquet are Mrs. Virginia Pina, Mrs. Nicholas Pina of Marion

The theme for this year's banquet is The Reward for a Thing well done is to have done it.

Let's everyone attend this banquet and honor this fine football team. The high school spirit has been great and the three towns making up this Regional School are close because of this fine team. See you there!

New York to await orders. He has followed instructions and is now in New York when orders come to him, as follows:

New York, 9 mo. 8,1810

"Capt. James Snow
Respected Friend

On leaving New York thee will proceed off Falmouth (England). Endeavor to make that port in the early part of the day. On approaching that port thee will hand thy fore royal and Top Gallant Sails and hoist my signal and lay off and on with the signal flying untill thee either gets orders or considers the safety of the Ship requires thy bringing her to anchor. If thee does not get orders the first day thee arrives off or at Falmouth, thee will write a letter to Thos. R. Hazard and another to Thomas Mair, both at Liverpool, informing of thy arrival at Falmouth and that thee awaits their orders, and put those letters into the Post Office at that place, and thee will write them to that effect every day until thee gets orders.

"When thee gets their orders thee will proceed conformable to the Charter party to which I request thy particular attention. If thee has to anchor at Falmouth thee will notice it on thy log book as thee must not conceal such an important circumstance, as fair dealing will be the most likely to insure a safe Voyage and a release in case of Capture. (These were the days leading up to the War of 1812, and British men-of-war were stopping every American ship to see whether it had a permit to trade with Great Britain and to make sure it wasn't trading with any other country.)

"If thee gets orders from Thomas Mair before thee gets an answer to thy letter to him or before thee gets orders from Thos. R. Hazard, thee will proceed on conformable to his orders and the Charter party without waiting for orders from Thos. R. Hazard & Co. or answers to any of thy letters. And when thee leaves Falmouth send this letter to Thos. R. Hazard & Co. to be

The final letter in this sequence evidently refers to some kind of an accident the Lady Madison had experienced. Unfortunately some of the words are illegible. (Guesses of what they might have been have been inserted by the present writer.)

Liverpool, 5 Nov. 1810

"Capt. James Snow
Ship Lady Madison

We have this day (learned?) that thee has put into Falmouth with the (?) of Sales, Spars etc. and that thee cannot proceed from that place until the Vessel is repaired, from the (account?) from which this information is derived we cannot (understand?) but are very disappointed in not having rec'd any letter from thee informing us of the (accident?) as these things are of particular consequence to be communicated to the owners of the Vessel in New York.

Thos. Mair the assignee of the principle part of the cargo informs that he has ordered the Vessel to London. Therefore thee will not proceed to any other place without first consulting us.

Thee will please apply to our friends ....(?) & Sons for any assistance thee may require at Falmouth.

Thy Asd. Friend
Thos. R. Hazard & Co."

A few months later Capt. Snow had left the Lady Madison as he received on June 1, 1811 a letter in Mattapoisett addressing him such as asthma, bronchitis, bronchiectasis, influenza, pneumonia, lung tumors and emphysema."

In Plymouth County, Mr. Clark pointed out, "The contributions to Christmas Seals make it possible to conduct a year-round program of activities. The casefinding programs, X-ray and tuberculin testing, are geared to search out and find unknown cases so that treatment may begin as soon as possible. The gifts to the annual appeal also support other vital programs such as public health education, the distribution of health materials, medical and nursing scholarships, patient rehabilitation and medical education and research."

Mr. Clark said that "last year alone, over 10,000 free chest X-rays were taken and over 30,000 school children were tuberculin tested in Plymouth County. The little well-known Christmas Seals were hard at work to protect our health throughout the year."

Since Christmas Seals provide the sole means of support, each contribution is important and the dividend power of the contribution cannot be underestimated. An investment in Christmas Seals will produce greater health benefits for each community in Plymouth County.

This year, Mr. Clark added, "when you use Christmas Seals on all your cards and packages, your gift will be supporting one year of continuing local community health. A contribution to Christmas Seals means Progress Today - Hope for Tomorrow for all of us. I hope that the residents of Mattapoisett will respond to this appeal and mail their contributions to the Plymouth County Health Association, 106 Main Street, Brockton, Massachusetts, today."

as Capt. James Snow, late commander of the Ship Lady Madison. This letter urged him to bring a vessel to New York as there was a brisk trade with both London and Lisbon. Whether he went or not, we do not know, but he was in the foreign trade again the next year when the war broke out.

Capt. Snow did not stay ashore for more than a few months. There exists a log book of his, chronicling three voyages he made as Master of the Ship Liberty in the fall of 1811 and the Spring and Summer of 1812.

Sapello is one of the islands off the Georgia coast, along with the better known Sea Island and St. Simon Island. Mattapoisett mariners knew these islands well at this time for they did a brisk coastwise trade in "Sea Island" cotton. In fact, Capt. the river that divides Georgia from Florida. Over in Sippican one of the coastwise craft was named the Altamaha after one of the several rivers that run through the marshes and between these islands to the sea. The journal of this voyage does not mention the ship's cargo, but it is reasonable to assume it was partly cotton at least; and since Plymouth was a British naval base, the cargo may well have included some naval stores.

There is nothing particularly exciting or spectacular about the voyage, but exerpts from the journal bring home to us the hardships of driving an oldtime sailing vessel through the winter gales of the North Atlantic: the gnawing anxiety when the vessel springs a leak, the constant setting and reefing, setting and reefing of the sails; and particularly at this time the nuisance of being boarded by every British Man-of-War the Liberty happened to meet. (This was immediately prior to the outbreak of war; and the British, hard-pressed by their life-struggle against Napoleon and all of Europe, were stopping every ship to see whether it had a permit to trade with Great Britain and to make sure it wasn't trading with any other country.)

The Journal begins (these are only exerpts):

Wed. 20th day of Nov. 1811 (Every entry starts with this long-winded phraseology; I shall shorten it): The first part moderate... middle part squally. The ship increases making water from 75 strokes per hour to 200 per hour.

Here a long shank was thrust through two holes and attached to the plunger in the pump shaft, and on each end of the shank was a handle so that the pumps could be manned by one man on each handle, or by several. Almost all wooden vessels took in some water which usually could be pumped out in 20 minutes or half an hours' pumping each morning. That was normal. But when there was a bad leak, the pumps had to be manned constantly, and there was no sound more dismal or dismaying to a sailor than the monotonous, never-ending clanking of the pumps all night, all day, all night, all day.

When the sea got rough, the lead was worse, and vice versa, as follows:

Nov. 21. First part squally and jumbling sea. The ship still increases making water to 220 strokes per hour. The middle part almost calm, the leak abates....At 10 A.M. smooth sea, the Leak abated to 70 strokes.

There followed two days of good weather but increasingly rough sea so he records:

Nov. 23. The ship continues to leak and steers very bad.

Nov. 24. Broched a cask of water and a bbl. of beef. The ship steers very bad and makes considerable water.
